

As someone who drives a car in the DFW area for 2 - 4 hours per day, I have enjoyed having an XM Radio receiver for several years just so I could listen to commercial-free classical music. XM became even more valuable to me when it recently began its continuous broadcasts of the local weather and traffic. I think the NAB is wrong to suggest that XM's weather and traffic reporting is unfair competition. Since no local radio station provides continuous reporting of weather and traffic, there is no competition.
